

SUERTE TEQUILA

Year Founded: 2012

Region: Highlands, Mexico

Founders: Lance Sokol & Laurence Spiewak

Master Distiller: Pedro Hernandez Barba

Cool Fact: Lance and Laurence were inspired by “the legend of lido rabbits” which credits a rabbit with discovering Tequila. Our rabbit was hand drawn by a tattoo artist named Adam Jackson from Tacoma, WA. Inside our rabbit are 13 icons that each have a unique meaning relating to luck, Tequila and our passion for the Mexican spirit.

Suerte, “luck” in Spanish, is an independent craft tequila made in the highlands of Jalisco. We are a single-distillery tequila, which means Suerte is the only brand made with NOM 1530. All our tequilas are 100% Tahona-crushed. Our Tahona was hand carved from volcanic rock that was unearthed below our distillery and weighs approximately 3,000 pounds. One thing that keeps us grounded is the coming together around the manual bottling line. No mass market production here. Just some of Pedro’s family and coworkers taking the time to make sure every bottle is up to our standards and ready to make its journey to America. Final destination: your glass. ¡Salud!

Suerte was founded and is owned by Laurence Spiewak and Lance Sokol. The Master distiller is Pedro Hernandez Barba, whose family owned the distillery that Laurence and Lance purchased majority ownership in back in 2013. Barba has a percentage of ownership in the distillery and in the Suerte brand, and also owns the agave fields where the agaves are grown for Suerte. Besides growing agaves, Pedro Barba also grows avocados.

Every drop of Suerte Tequila is infused with the revitalizing waters of the natural spring that flows from our hometown of Atotonilco El Alto. This crystal clear water is filtered through natural rocks deep underground before bubbling to the surface. This natural filtration process imbues our water with the natural minerals that give spring fed waters their refreshing taste. The spring at Atotonilco El Alto is renowned for its healing properties. It’s said that a soak in the spring cleanses the body of impurities and reinvigorates tired muscles. We welcome piñas by the truckload into our distillery and begin the process of splitting and stacking them in our brick oven.

We slow roast the piñas for 56 hours, four times longer than the industry standard, to bring out the fullest agave expression. It’s the way we roll that sets our tequila apart. Being 100% Tahona means every piña from the oven gets crushed under a two-ton stone, slowly and repetitively, for 24 hours to release all the juices. Other tequila producers use shredders to process the piñas. But, just like a mortar and pestle, the process of crushing releases the true essence of the agave and creates nuances of flavor you can’t achieve otherwise. The juice from the crushed piñas is mixed with pure spring water creating “Mosto”. To get the most of our Mosto, it goes directly into a fermentation tank where a proprietary yeast is added. Then we’re back to going slow – letting the yeast do its work for a few days and getting our fermentation on. From there, the liquid is ready to be double-distilled by passing through a stainless and then copper still for finishing. Our distillation is a 17-hour process and the industry standard is 3.5 hours.
